The Game

All the children are chickens
Two tickers, the wolves, stand apart in a place where they cannot see and hear the group.

Two children are now designated as "super chickens.

The wolves now come to tap the chickens; if you are tapped you must crouch in place.
To rejoin the game you must be tapped by one of the super chickens.

The goal is for the two wolves to discover who the super chickens are and then tap them both.

The game ends when the wolves have tapped all the super chickens.

Variant

At the end of the game, the wolves must guess who the super chickens were. If they guess correctly, then the wolves have won. But if they cannot guess it, then the chickens win.
