Blind Caravan

A slightly different way to perceive the environment in a special way.

Material

- One long rope (or several short ones)

Process

A rope is used to mark a path through varied terrain. The path should lead through as diverse an area as possible (sounds, soil, smells, ...). The participants are then blindfolded and walk along the path with the help of the rope (if necessary even barefoot). The aim is to encourage them to perceive their surroundings in a different way
