Pac-Pac

An easy game and perfect as an Ice Breaker at the start of some activity.

The participants form a circle; each one says their name in turn. One person stands in the middle and points his or her outstretched, clasped hands, which form a pistol, towards one of the players, saying "pac" and his or her name: "pac, Andrei!". Andrei drops down, and those to his right and left duel, stretching out their hands in a similar style, one towards the other, saying at the same time: "pac, X (name)". The one who says last moves to the middle of the circle.

As participants get the idea, the pace increases.

No materials are needed; the game can be played indoors or outdoors.
